The Mayor then entered the cars and Marphy, the leader of the rang, having been pointed out to him, he accessed him, stating that he had received instructions to have the party arrested, that there was a large force of military at the station prepared to carry out he orders that under these circumstances at would be vain and footials for them to offer any resistance, and that, further, in order to prevent any inconvenience to passengers against whom there was no charge, it would be prulent for Murphy to point out his associates, when the train would be ablowed to depart. In reply to this demand Murphy and his companions at once surrendered, and it is said that the head center pointed out the different individuals who composed the party. Another account adds that Murphy admitted that they were on their way to Portland to aid the Fenians there assembled in an attack upon some part of the British teritory, but of this statement no strong confirmation has yet bein given. Of course, these proceedings created lateuse excitement among the passengers on the train, among whom was lit. C. J. B. ydges, the Managing Director of the railway, who was returning in a special car from Toronto to Montreal. It is possible however, that he was aware previously that the arrests would be made, and if so, the secret was well kept, for bone of the prisoners, or they would not have allowed themselves to be caught. The prisoners have presented the professional services of the Hon. J. S. All the Fenians are in good spirits and fattleipate an acquittal on any serious charge that may be brought against them.

The whole eight prisoners are residents of twent course and position there. Murphy, as everybody knows, is a favern keeper Moriarty is a carponter. Harinett is a shoemaker, and Cullen is a clerk in the Toronto Savings Bank. The others are either tailors or shoemakers, and all are as vilinnous-looking a lot of scamps as one would care to come across in a holy anywhere. Expectation is on tip-toe to night to learn the developments to be made at the investigation to morrow.

A company of 200 gentlemen, representing the newspaper and book publishers of New-York, Boston and this city, paid a visit to the Manyunk Wood Paper Pulp Works, and witnessed the entire process of converting cord wood into paper palp, and its manufacture into paper. The pulp works are very extensive buildings and machinery, having cost $500,000. The great feature of the works is the economy in the use of chemicals, which disintegrate the wood and bleach the pulp, the refuse being carried to the evaporating house, where the chemicals are rendered fit for using again—only 20 per cent of fresh stock being added to make it equal to its former strength. At the adjoining Great Rock Paper Mills excellent painting paper is made with 80 per cent of wood pulp and 20 per cent of straw pulp. From 12 to 15 tuns of wood pulp are burned out daily. The works have but recently gone into operation, and already the price of paper is reduced three cents per pound. This evening the company particles of a decident operators are to Continental. three cents per pound. This evening the company par took of a splendid entertainment at the Continental.

The Ledger says: "The more this murder is examined into the more astounding it appears. A mother and her four children are butchered, it is supposed singly, after being enticed from home, and without leaving any marks of the hellish deed behind; and then upon the arrival of the husband and niece that they should have been dealt with in the same manner, and still no spot of blood found in the house or yard, is indeed surprising.

"The only rational theory that we have heard is that upon the arrival of Mr. Deering and his niece, he discovering that his family were not in the house, started after them, and after leaving the house was met by the murderer and slain. The niece then, it is thought, followed her uncle, and was in turn met by the fiend and killed in the same manner. Unfortunately, it appears that the name of the supposed murderer is not known by any of the neighbors, nor can any description of him be given. It is only known at present that he was a German laborer." The excitement in regard to this horrible murder in the

The following is the most accurate description the detectives have yet been able to learn of the supposed murderer of the feering family: His name is Antoine—, the last name unknown). He is 5 feet 11 inches high; 25 or 28 years of age; round shoulders; no side whisters; light bair; a short, thin, light mustache, inclined to curl at the ends; has a downcast look, and weighs 175 or 180 pounds; he is loosely made, and has a shuffling gait he has no thumb on the right hand, he speaks broken English.

The property missing consists of two revolvers—one large and one small—a musket, shotgun, a black frock coat, black sain vest, black pants, a brown overcoat, a pair of outside hoots, two $50 compound interest notes, one $20 do., two gold rings, one set with a purple stone, one gold chain with long links and chased bar at the end, and four 10-cent pieces.

LICUOR SELLING IN NEW-YORK.

Mr. Vandenberg reported the bill to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Metropolitan District, which, on motion of Mr. Brandreth, was made a special order for Friday, at 1 o clock. A desperate effort is being made to defeat this most righteous measure, and the reason is obvious. The inquor dealers in New-York, if they paid the same fees for licenses that liquor sellers in the country pay, would contribute to the fands of the city about $230,000, whereas they only pay about $12,000, or $228,000 less than they ought to pay. It is no wonder that they are opposed to allowing the Board of Health of New-York to discharge the duties now performed, or pretended to be by the present Board of Excise of that city. They are saving over $200,000 per annum by the existing arrangement, by the failure of the lastmentioned Board to do their duty under the law. No doubt they would be willing to pay $100,000 to defeat the bill now before the Legislature: they could do it, and then save upward of $100,000. But they will hardly succeed. Sixty-three members voted for Mr. Brandreth's resolution to make it a special order for to-morrow, and I think two more votes can be obtained when the bill is put on its final reading. Country members can see no reason why their constituents should pay from $30 to $100 for a license to sell liquor while the city dealer gets rid of paying anything. The latter makes a great deal of money, as well as an untold amount of misery; let him be made to pay for the privilege.

IMPORTANT RAILROAD BILL.

Among the bills which have passed the Assembly this morning is one originally introduced by Mr. Weed of Clinton, "to regulate fare on street railroads in New-York and Brooklyn," which is of considerable interest to the people of New-York and Brooklyn. It provides that all street railroads now in operation there, or in process of construction, shall, on or before the 1st day of July next, make an itemized report of the cost of construction of said road up to the time of said report, as well of its equipment, which shall be verified by its officers and filled with the Controller of the State and of the City of New-York. And all roads that may hereafter be built in said cities shall keep true accounts of the cost of the same, and on the 1st of January of each year, report to the cities and State; all companies shall keep a true account of their receipts and disbursements, and whenever the annual net receipts shall exceed 15 per cent on the cost and equipment of the road, the company shall reduce the fare from 5 to 4 cents; and whenever at such reduced rates the annual net receipts shall exceed 15 per cent, the fare shall be reduced from 4 to 3 cents. Roads failing to comply with these provisions, forfeit their charters. The second section of the bill is as follows: "From and after the passage of this act, no street railroad in the cities of New-York or Brooklyn shall charge or receive to exceed 5 cents for each passenger riding upon such road, including United States tax." The bill now goes to the ment, considerable confusion and some disappointment was the result. However, by some means or other, enough persons obtained admission to completely fill the lower portion of the house. The pictures were mostly hung in tiers against the drop-cartain in front of the stage, while a few occupied the fronts of the prosessium boxes. The arrangement, though perhaps the best that could be made under the circumstances, did not show the pictures to se good an effect as if enous one had been placed separately upon the cased, and the light being equally distributed about the house was also unfavorable. Most of the sudience also were too far from the pictures to be able to see them distinctly.

At about 8 o'clock Mr. Miner anneunced the first lot, No. 1, "Bennett's Friend," a good-humored and not unflattering likeness of the well-known Director of the Opera. A bid of $5 was instantly made, followed by "$10," "$15," "$20," and so on till, the picture pas presently knocked down at $45. "No 2." described in the catalogue as "An African who has gained Universal Soffrage, was an annaing semi-likeness of Mmc Carozzi Zaceloi in the character of L Africane. After some competition it was sold for $30, "No. 3," was a representation of Beilini and was described as "A Luna which cannot be Eclipsed." Perhaps somebody may comprehend the joke. This also brought $50, "No. 4," supposed to represent Mazzoleni. The catalogue stated that it had been found impossible to procure a joke on him, although several attempts had been made. As samples of these we reproduce the following:

The person who contributed a supplemental humorous catalogue to the sale, appears to succeed better than the above named in denominating the great Tenor. Marvisck's "Paust" favorite. This seemed to be the opinion of those present at the sale, for, after a spirited competition, the picture was knocked down at $45.

"The Star of the North," "whose worth's unknown, although its hight be taken"—which latter quotation is supposed to be from Shakespeare—might be supposed, by those who choose to do so, to be a likeness of Miss Kellogg. The very general popularity of the original was well evined by the spontaneous hirst of applease which broke out all over the house when the picture was put up, and a lively rivalry of bidding took place for its passessator. Andrew Johnson, kicking from the frent door of the White House a small bureau, from all the cracks and creviess of which a swarm of small frightened darkies were excaping, also caused considerable amusement. The above will serve as samples from which the reader may imagine the remainder of the list, comprising some $5 in all. The auctioneer oppeared to be in haste, and made no comments on any of the puctures, while the few jokes which were volunteered from the sudience had scarcely time to be comprehended before the sale was made and another picture put up. Gov. Hamilton of Texas made a speech at Austin, recently, in which he opposed some ordinances passed by the Convention as not being Republican, or meeting the necessary demands made. They had passed but one ordinance which accorded fully with the President's policy, and that was declaring the war debt rull and void. He appealed from the action of the Convention to the people.

The Convention had passed an ordinance exempting all persons who under guthority of civil or military power. The Convention had passed an ordinance exempting all persons who under authority of civil or military power had indicted injury upon persons during the war from being held accountable. Such an ordinance would not and should not shield them. He called upon the loyal people of the State to work together. He believed provision should be made to admit the negro to vote if he became elevated and came up to a certain standard. The Convention had refused this, and refused to give the blacks any quota of the sencel fund, or make any provision for their education.

They had, however, been taxed to assist the whites in sending their children to school. He intended to announce to the people those who had worked against the interest of the State.

Sub-Treasury building. From the statement of the sictim and others, it would appear that shortly after 12 o'clock on the day mentioned. Mr. William Condell, the first teller's assistant in the Bank of America, left that institution having in his possession checks on the Assistant United States Treasurer for the sum of $5,000 in gold end $4,000 in carrency. On reaching the Sub-Treasury, he presented his sheeks and was paid $5,000 in gold certificate and $4,000 in carrency. On large denominations. These he carefully placed in his pantalocus pocket, and then went into another part of the building for the purpose of seeing a friend. He could reclaim him, and proceeded to the Post-Office, stopping on his return to innoh at Gould's. He then returned to the Sub-Treasury building in search of the friend already mentioned, and on entering the building some person passed him to a hurriest manner, and slammed the door against him. As the sametime Mr. Condell lost all recollection. Some time after, he was found by a boy lying insensible upon the pavernent, and a man bending over him searching his pockets. As the boy came up, the man muttered something about looking for the address of the insensible man, to see who he was but in a moment after disappeared in the confusion and crowd which such as unusual circumstance created.

SIR: The question, to whom belongs the power of ntroducing the screw into steam navigation, was settled in the patent-right of Austria, but failed in England and rance. In the latter country he was cheated out of his invention, and in England, which had promised a premium of £20,000 to the first practical adapter of the screw, his just claims were ignored, and the proposed premium distributed among three rivals for the prize, whose earliest claims went back to the year 1835. In Austria and Germany, Joseph Rossel was declared the originator of practical screw-navigation, by official acts as well as by the highest authorities of the science of mechanics. His immortal merits are on record in all the scientific books and cyclopedias of the Continent, and when he died, in 1837, a monument was ordered to be erected at Visuna to his memory. But Ressel's friends are striving to obtain recognition of his merits by this great Republic, which, through the late war, reaped the most signal benefits from the use of the screw in steam navigation. A committee was organized for this purpose in this city in 1854, and has been successful in obtaining highly favorable judgments from many scientific authorities. It took pains to lay all the papers and documents concerning Ressel's claims before the American Academy of Science and Arts, and although this association, in order to avoid precedents of this kind, declined to give its opinion as a body, every single member of the Committee to whom the matter was referred, declared himself satished of Ressel's merits.

This Committee intends now to address Congress, as the legal representative of this great and liberal Nation, which ought to know, honor and reward the memory of the author of a reform to which she owes a part of her national greatness, safety and wealth.

It is calculated, from data deemed trustworthy, that in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, the number of negroes at work is about one-third of that in 1860, while there are now twice as many white laborers as then.
